Public Sale

We will sell at Public Auction at 2 p. m., Saturday June 20th, the Suburban home of Mr. D. A. Emmett, located on the Maysville and Germantown turnpike just outside the city limits. There is a variety of fruit of all kinds on this place. A splendid place for chicken raising and truck gardening. Visiting In The Blue Grass and Buying Jerseys—Miss Long and Sister Guests of Anderson Stock Farm

(Tuesday's Lexington Leader.)

Mr. R. A. Long, well known Kansas City financier and churchman, arrived in Lexington yesterday morning accompanied by his daughters, Miss Louisa Long and Mrs. Hayne Ellis and C. J. Tucker and Fred Dow, respectively managers of the horse and dairy departments of his famous Lexington Farm at Lee's Summit, Mo., a short distance from Kansas City. Mr. Long is well known to Kentuckians, particularly members of the Christian Church, as he is one of the founders of the "Men and Millions Movement" and has made many large gifts to schools and universities of which Transylvania and Hamilton have been among the beneficiaries.

Miss Louisa Long is well known in Lexington and Central Kentucky as the owner of the best stable of show horses in the West and possibly no woman exhibitor ever had such a collection of horses as are now to be found in her stables. On her last trip to Lexington she bought a novice heavy harness horse from R. E. Moreland that promises to be a sensation this year. Quite a number of the best horses in the Long stable came from Kentucky, including those famous stallions, My major Dare Kentucky's Best, etc.

The Herald might have added that many of Miss Long's horses were purchased from L. T. Anderson's Point au View Stock Farm at Maysville. Miss Long and sister, Mrs. Haynes, left Point au View last Saturday where they have been the guests of Miss Grace Anderson.

The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution opened its twenty-third annual convention in Minneapolis.

WEEKLY SPORT LETTER.

(By C. H. ZUBER.) Cincinnati, June 16, 1914.

With the leaders not quite holding their own and the teams farther down in the race winning more than half their games, the race in the National League has tightened up considerably. The best work done so far in the inter-sectional series so far as victories are concerned, must be credited to the St. Louis and Boston teams. The two leaders—the New Yorks and the Reds—have lost slightly in percentage, the falling off of the Reds being due, not to poor work, but to two close finishes at Philadelphia the Quakers winning out in the last inning of one nine-inning game and the fifteen-round contest. There has been no let down in the vig displayed by the Herzog tribe, and the prospects are extremely bright that they will return home from their present tour in second place, with St. Louis sufficiently close to them to make the next meeting between the two teams a decidedly interesting series of battles.

The desertion of Marsans, the Cuban outfielder, is a handicap to the playing strength of the Reds, so far as the individual is concerned. However, his "rubber-legging" has taken from the team the one disturbing element that has worried Manager Herzog since the season opened. Marsans has given evidence of his lack of sporting spirit or recognition of what is fair by his repudiation of the contract he signed with the Cincinnati club. A player who does not act honestly in a matter of this kind can hardly be expected to play fair in other matters, so that the club, while missing Marsans as an individual, really is better off without him and his influence. Manager Herzog is on the look-out for a capable outfielder to fill the gap left by the desertion of Marsans, and expects to have the hole filled before the team returns home.

Manager Herzog still is bending his energies toward strengthening his pitching department, although the work of Douglass, and Yingling in recent games indicates that these two new men are in the fight to stay, and that they will improve as the season progresses. Beaton and Ames also are going well, giving Herzog five dependable twirlers at this time.

They're having a lot of sport around Sandy Hook these days, trying to decide which of the three American yachts recently put in commission shall have the honor of defending the America's Cup against the precious insister of the noted tea merchant, Sir Thomas Lipton, and the fourth of his string of Shamrocks. In the early races the Vautia looked the better boat. During the past few days, however, the Resolute has shown better form. The De fiance as yet has made no real start, but will get into the game before the end of the week. Meanwhile the Shamrock IV is being hailed as a "sure winner" on the other side—provided her freak construction stands the rude buffeting of the Atlantic on the way over.

That sure was rude treatment accorded the American polo players by their British antagonists in the opening game of the international series on Long Island on Saturday. An 8 to 3 score, with fractures—not fractures, Mr. Printer—is some walloping, and those who gave odds in backing the American team have been doing some hedging since the events of Saturday. However, there are still some games to be played, and it is expected that the Americans will pull themselves together and hand their friendly rivals a little of the star spangled banner stuff before the final word is said.

Much tears are being shed in turf circles over the indefinite postponement of consideration of the Reinhardt Bill in the Louisiana Legislature, permitting betting on horse races in that State. It was thought that the influence brought to bear upon the Legislature by the business men of New Orleans would bring the members of that body to a realization of what the passage of this measure would mean to the commercial interests of the Crescent City. But as is usually the case in such matters the rural members of the Legislature, neither knowing nor caring what the wants of the city are, voted against immediate consideration of the bill, with the result that it probably will still be found among the files when the Legislature adjourns. And the turfmen who expect to order Bayou Cook Off sters, pompano and those tower-like gin-fizzes this winter, will have to be satisfied with the cold storage food and long distance drinks of El Paso Juarez.

"The churches in which all members are paying members are few, those in which all are praying members are still fewer, and the church in which all members are both paying and praying members doesn't exist at all."
